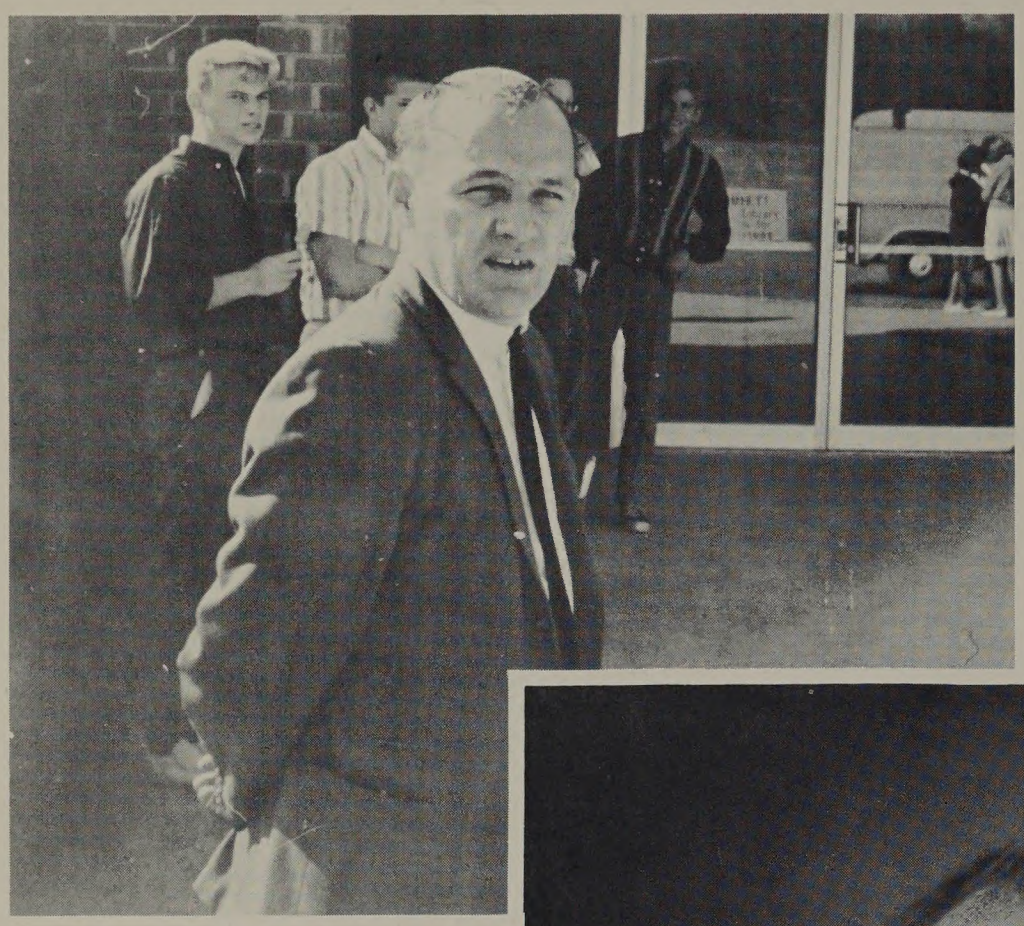
Dedication...

to thee we dedicate



With everlasting gratitude for his painstaking assistance to the faculty and student body, we dedicate the 1964 TORCH to Mr. Patrick V. Ross. He has been the principal at Orange Glen since it opened its doors a mere two years ago. Each year he has proved to be more indispensable, for he is the hidden pulse of the school, the coordinator innumerable details.

His dependable manner of handling large or small problems, his cordiality although pressed for time, have earned him first place in the hearts of all who know him. Therefore, that is why we, the students of Orange Glen High School, are proud to dedicate to him, the 1964 TORCH.

Best wishes

Foreword

In this our second year, we have had many victories and achievements to add to our memories. Before we came to Orange Glen, two years ago, it was merely a group of buildings lacking in traditions and colors. New traditions have now been formed and old ones strengthened. We have had disappointments but our strong school spirit has made up for them.

More than ever in this past year, we have felt the tremendous growth of the student body, the crowded lunch lines, inadequate library, and packed classrooms. Though we were crowded our school has still thrived.

Orange Glen has surged forward. The school has begun to take its future shape. The gym and additional classrooms are taking shape.

Buildings have sprung up here and there dotting our campus. These new buildings will enhance the beauty of our school, and help to ease our crowded situation.

At its outset, Orange Glen represented merely the outward shell of a high school. The thirty-five members of our teaching staff have spent time and energy helping our school develop and have devoted additional time establishing a sound extra-curricular program.

Through many trials and tribulations the TORCH staff has tried to capture this population explosion. In these following pages you will view the growth of Orange Glen High School.

Principal's Message

Nineteen-sixty-three has offered each of us an opportunity to live during a critical period of world history. We have seen the overthrow of national governments; the assassination of national leaders; an increase in the world crime rate; threats to the basic foundation of democracy.

These tragedies are more than mere historical records of 1963. They clearly indicate that the future of our nation, and indeed of the world, depends today upon an educated citizenry. The challenges confronting our democratic way of life have been, and in the future will be, successfully met by our educational system.

The Escondido community is aware of the vital role that education must play in a dynamic society and have provided you with the means of developing your potential to the maximum. I am confident that each of you will accept the challenges presented by the events of the past year and will wisely use the resources available to further develop the tradition for excellence which is yours.

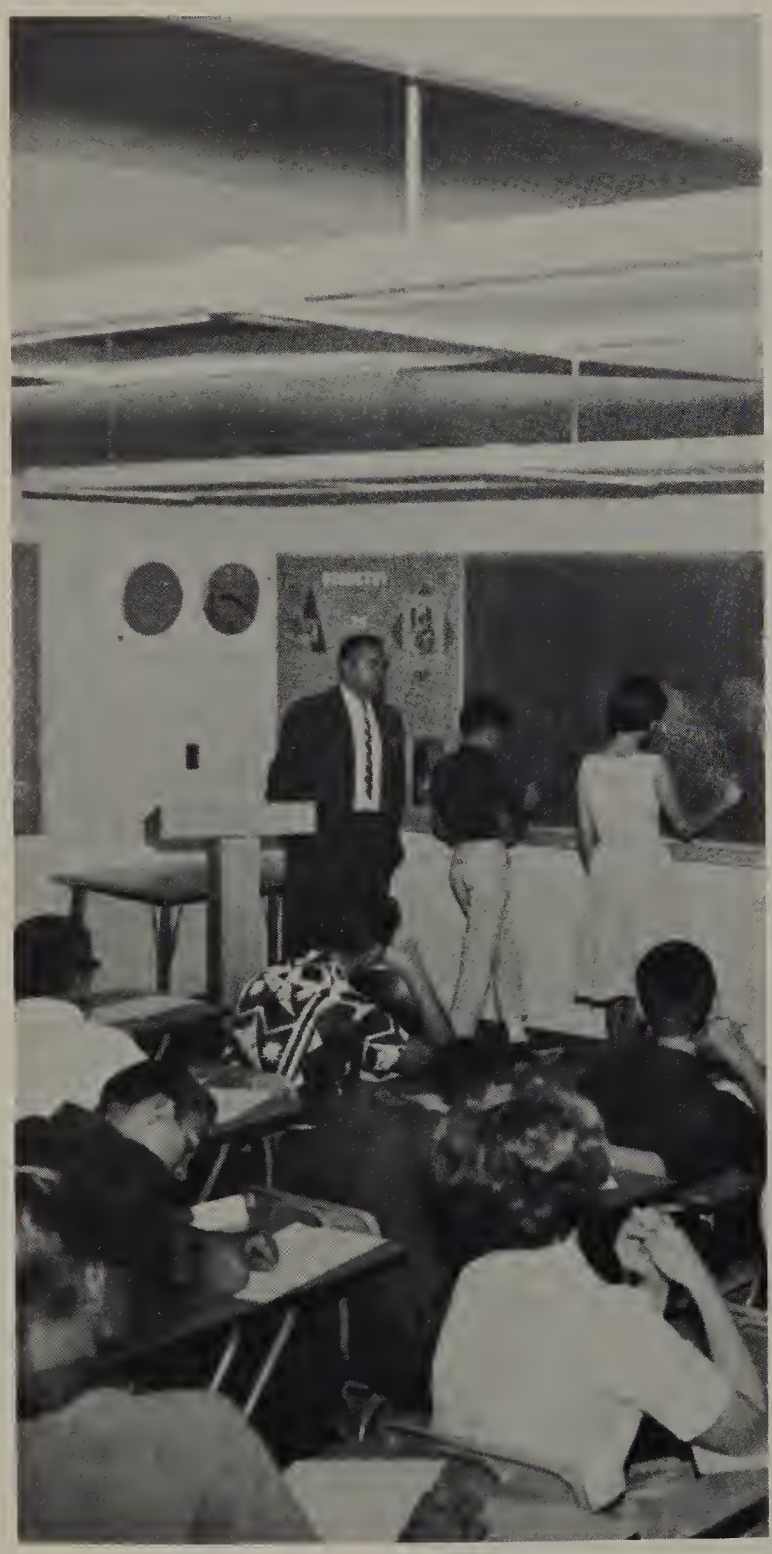
Curri

Developing good minds and utilizing mental abilities has been the job of the Orange Glen teaching staff. For a new school, our curriculum is second to none. Under the direction of Mr. William P. Radney, Director of Curriculum, the various departments of Orange Glen High have worked diligently to maintain the highest scholastic standards of the state of California.

Freshman math class students work problems on the board as Mr. Simmons watches.



Mrs. Bryant watches as Ira Chaffin finishes another masterpiece.

Mr. Figueroa lectures students in his Spanish I class.

Metal shop teaches future blacksmiths of America the basics of the trade.

MR. WILLIAM P. RADNEY
Director of Curriculum

Girls' PE is very enjoyable.

In addition to required subjects, students can choose from a wide variety of elective courses. Orange Glen offers elective courses in arts, English, languages, mathematics, music, sciences, and shops. If a student, as a sophomore or a junior, wishes to gain driving skill he can take driver education.

For those students who wish to enter college, Orange Glen advisors can suggest the best courses to prepare them for their future education. In addition, students who plan to take a job after graduating from high school may take courses in preparation for future employment.

Orange Glen's teaching staff and exceptional curriculum, along with eager students grasping for education, truly make for an excellent school.
